

Mango lets you communicate in real time with the people around you.

We believe communicating with others in your vicinity should be simple, safe, and natural. That's why we created Mango, the first-ever, location-based communication app that allows you to freely interact with others in your area—all without knowing each other's contact details or social media handles.

Our Mission

We believe in the importance of authentic, in-the-moment interactions between people. Mango exists to create more opportunities for people to communicate freely and naturally with others around them.

Branching Out From Handle-based Communication

Contacting your friends is easy—we have countless devices and apps to help us do that. But what about the people and merchants around you right now? Is there a natural way to exchange tips, ask a question, or simply connect with others in the same vicinity? That's where Mango can help.

- Visiting a new restaurant?
See what dishes people are raving about tonight.
- Delayed flight at the airport?
Grab a drink to pass the time with another flyer.
- Suspicious-looking van on your street?
Ask your neighbors if they know who it belongs to.

A Slice of Something New

With our real-time, location-based technology, Mango is breaking ground on a new and better way to interact.

- No Contact Info Required

Communicate with others without knowing their contact information or social media handles.

- Ephemeral

Once you leave the area, all your interactions disappear.

- Choose to Stay in Touch

Agree to friend each other on Mango and you can interact through the platform long after you both leave the vicinity.

- One-on-One Chats

Chime in on a current interaction or start your own thread. Invite someone to chat one-on-one.

- Free Messaging

All interactions take place on your existing data network.
